

PROJECT CONNECT

Supporting survivors of intimate partner violence and vulnerable groups in the Kingston Community

WHO ARE WE

We are a group of students from the Faculty of Health Sciences at Queen's University, including members of KHealth and the Women's Health Interest Group within the School of Medicine.

WHO IS THIS PROJECT FOR?

For most, a cellphone in today's world is a necessity for connection and autonomy. For survivors of intimate partner violence and other vulnerable groups, a phone can provide access to healthcare, support, shelter, safety, work and a fresh start.

DONATIONS

We accept gently used phones, laptops/tablets, and chargers in addition to purchased items such as new SIM cards and cash. We also accept cheques and online donations directed to the organizations. Donation drop-off/pick-up can be arranged via email or items/money can be dropped off directly at the organizations below.

ORGANIZATIONS

The Kingston organizations accepting donations for Project Connect include: Interval House, Dawn House, Street Health and Sexual Assault Centre Kingston. All locations are accepting direct donation drop-off.
